

Prep Work:

Print off each sign below (FORBIDDEN FOREST, SNAPE'S POTION CLOSET, LAKE, ENCHANTED MAZE). Decide which rooms or location you are using for your party and tape up the signs that you printed off. Next print off the instructions for each of the tasks. When it is time to start the party you will need to read the instructions for the first task to the team to get the party started. From there they will know where to go for the first task.

Setup Instructions for each task:

For the forbidden forest you will need to print off two copies of the truth serum poem, cut it smaller if you would like and put them in the two plastic eggs. Next you need to hide both of the eggs in the forbidden forest. Here is where you will need to put the rope.

For Snape's potion closet you will need to mix together the different ingredients from the material list and put them in the bowls. Type or write the name of each of the ingredients onto the index cards so the players know what they are mixing together.

Example.....mix together the baking soda and glitter then on the index card write or type Ground unicorn horn.

In order for it to fizz they will need to mix together the troll blood, Flobberworm Slime, Powdered Root of Asphodel or Ground Unicorn horn.

Set up the ingredients on a table and put the two glasses there for the teams to make their potions.

For the Lake you will need to use the two large tubs, the sand, the small toys, coins and the two colored stones. Dump the sand into each of the tubs, dump in the small toys and coins and the colored stones. So each tub should have sand, some toys, coins and one colored stone. Mix them all around really good and make sure everything is fully covered with sand. Grab some water and start dumping it into the sand. Make sure you put enough water into it so it is hard to find the colored stones. One member from the team has to dig in the mud to find the colored stone. Once both teams find the colored stones then both teams can move onto task three which is the enchanted maze. This is the last and final task. Both teams start this task at the same time.

For the Enchanted Maze you will need the large foam or colored construction paper, two notebooks, two black markers and Large plastic goblet. Before the game you will need to cut the large foam so it is big enough for someone to stand or you can use the construction paper. On one side of the room or play area set up a table to put the large plastic goblet (Triwizard Trophy) on. You will also need to decide what you want to put in the goblet for the winners. A couple suggestions are $5 McDonalds coupon books for each of the players, or $5 bill for each of the players, fill it up with different candy bars so each player gets one. Whatever you decide would work but make sure you put a little something in there for the winners. The last and final task is going to be Harry Potter Trivia. Each of the teams are going to have to work together to figure out the answers. Once they figure out the answer they will need to write it down in the notebook in big letters and when the person asking the questions ask for the answers they will need to show everyone what they wrote on their paper. For each correct answer they can move one step closer to the "Triwizard Trophy". So that means that you will need to put down two rows of foam or construction paper leading to the table with the trophy on it. Think of a game board with the construction or foam being the game spaces and the team members being the game pieces. Only one team member can stand on the game spaces and move forward onto the next space but they can stand next to the player to help come up with the answer and put them down on paper. The game consists of twenty trivia questions. After each task completed I asked that you keep track of who finished the task first. By completing the tasks first that team or teams get to skip game spaces. Each task done first = one game space. So what that means is if one team finished both tasks first then they can start on the third game space. If one team finished first on the first task and the other team finished first on the second task then both teams start on the second game space.
